Hello, My name is William Blakes and I am a passionate web developer with training in art, business management and entrepreneurship. My different but unique skill sets provide me with the ability to see the overall big picture of accomplishing a project, to understand the importance of teamwork and to create but sometimes think outside of the box. I am confident that I can construct almost anything in JavaScript with some coffee and documentation. I love the sense of resolving complex problems and finding good solutions is one of my best attributes.
